The disputes concerning imitation and infringement of patents, models, brands, copy rights, licence agreements, manufacturing and distribution of patented or branded products, joint-venture agreements, franchising and merchandising, cessing and technology transfer contracts, are increasing more and more. The rapid evolution of technology and the impossibility for the judicial system of being always up to date in such technical and complicated subjects increases the risk of unfair decisions which can have unbelievable effects on a corporate budget and on dispute costs.

ADR procedures, managed by professionals, expert in the subject, allow the parts to get rapid, friendly and predictable solutions controlling the costs.

In particular, mediation gives the opportunity to reach satisfactory agreements for both the parts, also fostering future collaboration to increase economic advantages coming from intellectual property.
